CITCO Water Announces Acquisition of Aqua Products, Inc.

Strategic acquisition expands CITCO's water and wastewater equipment, chemical feed, and service capabilities across the Southeast.

For more than nine decades, CITCO Water has served the water and wastewater industries with a clear mission: to provide customers everything needed to "take water from the source, deliver it to the consumer, and return it back to the source again." CITCO Water sums up this mission in four simple words: "Solutions driven. Commitment given."

Today, CITCO Water is proud to announce the acquisition of Aqua Products, Inc., expanding CITCO's presence in the Southeastern United States and strengthening its ability to deliver chemistry, chemical feed solutions, and technical service to water and wastewater customers.

The acquisition is another step in CITCO Water's strategy to build a comprehensive platform serving the waterworks and wastewater industries. Aqua Products brings an established portfolio of treatment chemicals, chemical feed, knowledgeable sales and service teams, and hands-on technical support that complement CITCO's existing capabilities.

Founded in 1931 in Huntington, West Virginia, by Charles Irving Thornburg, CITCO has been family-operated since Web Morrison purchased the company in 1958. Today, CITCO Water provides customers with comprehensive waterworks solutions spanning chemical treatment, smart metering, integrated technology, equipment, hardware, inventory, and repair services.

Aqua Products serves water and wastewater customers with water chemistry, chemical feed equipment, parts, and support for both new systems and existing facilities. Its in-house sales and service teams help customers select products, maintain equipment, and address operational challenges.

In addition to its equipment and distribution offerings, Aqua Products provides on-site technical service, preventive maintenance, in-shop repairs, and installations. The company also ships products throughout the United States, helping customers access the equipment and replacement parts they need.

The combination brings together Aqua Products' product knowledge and service capabilities with CITCO Water's broader distribution network, technical expertise, and growing portfolio of solutions. Customers will benefit from a stronger partner focused on reliable service and long-term water infrastructure needs.

Together, the teams will build on their established customer and manufacturer relationships while identifying opportunities to deliver more complete solutions across the water and wastewater lifecycle.

“We are excited to welcome Aqua Products to the CITCO Water family,” said Jeff Morrison, CEO of CITCO Water. “Their team has built a business around the things we value most: taking care of customers, providing technical expertise, and standing behind the products they sell. Bringing our organizations together expands what we can offer customers across the Southeast and gives our teams even more ways to solve problems and grow together.”

The acquisition reflects CITCO Water’s continued commitment to investing in people, strengthening its technical and service capabilities, and supporting the communities and customers that depend on reliable water and wastewater infrastructure.

“Aqua Products is a natural fit with our mission of being solutions driven and commitment given,” Morrison added. “We look forward to building on the relationships their team has developed and combining our strengths to create even more value for the customers we serve.”
